Featured Artists

Aaron Hill

serves on the faculty at the University of Virginia, plays principal oboe in the Charlottesville and University Symphony Orchestra, English horn in the Roanoke Symphony Orchestra and spends summers performing with the Wintergreen Festival Orchestra. Mr. Hill holds Master of Music and Artist Diploma degrees from the Yale School of Music, where he received the Thomas Nyfenger Memorial Prize and a Bachelor of Music degree with Highest Honors from the University of Michigan.

Camille Phillips

is a graduate of Northwestern University where she received her Bachelor and Master of Music degree in viola performance under the direction of Roland and Almita Vamos. She is currently the principal violist and former concertmaster for the East Valley Mormon Choral Organization Symphony Orchestra and also is a substitute for the Phoenix Symphony.

Currently, she is investing her time and talents in leading Classical Exposure as its Founder and Artistic Director.

Nicholas Villalobos

As a soloist, Nicholas has performed concertos with the Phoenix Symphony, Tempe Symphony, and Scottsdale Baroque Orchestra. He has been a finalist in the Arizona State University Concerto Competition and was recently selected as a semi-finalist for the distinguished Sphinx Competition held annually in Detroit, Michigan. Mr. Villalobos is currently pursuing a degree in bass performance at Arizona State University with world-renowned soloist Catalin Rotaru. www.simplythreetrio.com
